

MSA Announces First Quarter Revenue and Earnings

PITTSBURGH, April 24, 2013 /PRNewswire/ -- MSA (NYSE: MSA) today announced that net sales for the first quarter of 2013 were $283 million compared with $293 million for the first quarter of 2012, a decrease of $10 million, or 3 percent. Excluding the effect of weakening currencies and the company's second quarter 2012 divestiture of its North American ballistic helmet business, sales increased slightly. Net income for the first quarter of 2013 was $19 million, or $0.52 per basic share, compared to $24 million, or $0.65 per basic share, during the same period last year.

"Compared to our record first quarter of 2012, which included a number of large non-recurring fixed gas and flame detection orders, sales were relatively flat with core product sales growing 3 percent," said William M. Lambert, MSA President and CEO. MSA's five core product groups include industrial head protection, fall protection devices, portable gas detection instruments, fixed gas and flame detection systems, and self-contained breathing apparatus (SCBA). The combined sales of these core product groups increased to 69 percent of MSA's global business in the first quarter.

"Although we continue to see economic uncertainty in many regions of the world, this has not diminished our commitment to – or our focus on – executing our corporate strategy," Mr. Lambert said. "Our results over the past several years clearly demonstrate our strategy to drive demand for core products in emerging and developed markets is working and on target, and I believe it continues to position MSA for greater long-term success."

First quarter sales in the company's North American segment decreased $1 million, or 1 percent, when compared to the same period of 2012. Excluding the impact of the ballistic helmet divestiture in the second quarter of 2012, North American segment sales increased $4 million, or 3 percent, when compared to the same period of 2012. Sales of breathing apparatus and portable gas detection instruments increased $4 million and $1 million, respectively, on higher shipments to the fire service and industrial markets. These increases were partially offset by declines in gas mask and fixed gas and flame detection product sales.

Sales in MSA's European segment decreased $1 million, or 2 percent, when compared to the first quarter of 2012. Local currency sales of breathing apparatus and portable gas detection instruments both increased $1 million and were offset by a $3 million decrease in fixed gas and flame detection systems, on lower large order activity to industrial markets.

Sales in MSA's International segment decreased $7 million, or 9 percent, when compared to the first quarter of 2012. Excluding an unfavorable currency translation impact of $5 million, International segment local currency sales decreased $2 million from the first quarter of 2012. Local currency sales of breathing apparatus and portable gas detection instruments both increased $1 million. These improvements were offset by declines across a broad range of product groups, primarily in regions with significant mining markets.

North American segment net income for the first quarter of 2013 was $16 million, unchanged from the first quarter of 2012 on an increase in research and development costs, higher selling, general and administrative expenses, offset by improved product margins on a higher level of core sales and a lower effective tax rate.

First quarter net income for MSA's European segment was $4 million, a decrease of $2 million compared to the first quarter of 2012. This decrease was primarily due to a lower level of sales, increased research and development costs, and higher selling, general and administrative expenses.

International segment net income for the first quarter of 2013 was $7 million, a decrease of $2 million compared to the same quarter last year. The decrease was primarily due to a decrease in sales, higher research and development costs, partially offset by a decline in selling, general and administrative expenses.

"While the realities of the global economy somewhat temper my optimism, I am encouraged by the fact that we did see improvement in order activity as the first quarter progressed," Mr. Lambert said. "After a fairly slow January and February, we saw a pick-up in order activity in March. As we move into the second quarter, our three key areas of focus are the continued development of innovative safety products and instruments, driving demand for our core products and maintaining our efforts to reduce operating costs. I believe we have meaningful opportunities on each of these fronts, and we will continue to invest in and advance these initiatives in ways that enhance our customers' safety and reward shareholder confidence in MSA," Mr. Lambert concluded.
